2026 Sound Sense

Many of us might not like to admit that we are constantly turning up the TV volume. However, over a lifetime of listening, our hearing begins to deteriorate. As we age, the tiny hairs in our inner ears that pick up sound vibrations begin to break down. The louder the noise, the more violent the assault on these hair cells and the more severe the degradation. On May 31, turn down the television, radio, or headphones playing music from your smartphone—it is Save Your Hearing Day. How loud is too loud? The World Health Organization says that listening to sounds around 80 decibels can be safe if your total exposure stays below about 40 hours a week, but as levels go above that, safe listening time drops quickly. For example, at 90 decibels, the recommended weekly listening time falls to roughly four hours, and at 100 decibels, it's only about 20 minutes per week. So you can still enjoy loud music or TV, but the louder it is, the shorter the safe listening time to protect your hearing.

Experts think that one of the best ways to save our hearing is to protect our ears. Professions that require the use of loud equipment often require the use of earplugs or earmuffs. The same advice applies to those engaging in loud recreational activities, such as riding a motorcycle or hunting.

For those who find themselves in loud places, such as an airplane or crowded train, noise-cancelling headphones often help make the loud environment more comfortable and tolerable.

It turns out that the best medicine for our ears is to give them a rest. Hearing experts recommend limiting exposure to very loud sounds, such as a 100-decibel rock concert, and following them with extended periods of quiet to reduce strain on the ears. Perhaps the best way to celebrate Save Your Hearing Day is simply to hit the mute button
